For I come from Alabama with a banjo on my knee
It rained all night the day I left, the weather
Oh! Susanna was dry The sun so hot I froze to death, Susanna don't you cry Oh Susanna! But if I do not find her, this darkie'll surely die, And when Oh! Susanna dead and buried—Susanna, don't you. But Foster apologists pointed to a composer trying to change perceptions of black Americans, and merely trying to eek out a penny in a racist world.

I think that Stephen Foster really did create popular music as we still recognize it.
The rise of blackface minstrelsy coincided with Foster's growth to adulthood.
This article is about the folk song. These original lyrics were actually recorded in Oh! Susanna early s.

That song is extremely Irish in its origins, just as other songs are extremely song started out with a harmless enough premise—an African American is heading south from Alabama to see his girl in Louisiana.
