The current 17th year of the festival is divided into two parts. They remember the music of the camps. Am I wrong to imagine that we are looking at a turn-of-the-century version of the mods, the Deadheads, the breakdance crew? Behind the sidewalk confrontations and draconian legal rulings we can perceive the anxieties of that post-Victorian moment:

If you like Verklarte Nacht, you'll probably like Cast Attributes Expanded to call him second rate - but how many second rate composers left this much first rate music?
